NEWS FROM THE APO

Congratulations! You've made it to the end of the year – just a few assignments and exams to go and then it is all over! So, keep putting the effort in for just a few more weeks.

Your final grades will come out in the week of December 8th – so make sure you check your grades in case you have a supplementary exam to prepare for. Remember, if you have any questions about your grades, to ask.

For those that are leaving us at the end of this year – good luck with whatever and wherever you go and do. Once you have landed that dream job, remember to let us know. Graduations are in April next year – we will be having our School Recognition Dinner close to that event, so if you are coming along for graduation, let me know so I can send you the information about the Dinner.

For those coming back next year – there will be activities in O Week for those going into level II (Animal Sc & Pre-Vet) as well as those going into the DVM program. More information will be coming out over the summer holidays so keep an eye on your emails.

During the last week of semester we will be running the last lot of SELTs – I appreciate the time and effort these take to complete but still urge you to give us as much feedback as you can so we can use your comments to make any changes we need to.

Also during the last week, many classes will be doing final presentations on their various projects. Most happen within class but some that are more open to the public include the level III pre-vet anatomy & physiology projects (Tuesday & Wednesday in the Vet Building corridor) and the DVM Clinical Research Project presentations (Friday morning in the tutorial room in the Vet Building). Please come along and support your fellow students.

Lastly, enjoy your summer holidays. If you do need to contact us over the holidays, remember the University closes over the week from December 24th to January 2nd. Other than that, someone will be around to take your calls.

LOCKER KEYS LOCKER KEYS LOCKER KEYS

For those of you that have a key for one of the lockers in the change room areas of the Vet Building....

If you are leaving Uni at the end of this year, you will need to return your key to Elaine in the front office of the Main Building at Roseworthy before the end of exams. If you do not, you will receive a bill for $20 for payment for the key. Non-payment will result in a NSI on your record and will prevent you from being able to graduate until the bill is paid.

For those of you returning next year, you can keep your key (unless you want a new locker – then, see Elaine in the front office).

On Saturday 22nd October the Moo Crew (Roseworthy Bovine Interest Group), in conjunction with the Australian Veterinary Association (AVA) and Adelaide Veterinary Students Association (AVSA), held the University of Adelaide's inaugural Rural Practice Day. The event comprised of 3 stations covering bovine hoof trimming, poisonous weeds, as well as techniques of horse handling.

Our three presenters for the day were Jeanette Perry (Lecturer Large Animal Internal Medicine, University of Adelaide), Jeremy Rogers (Senior Veterinary Officer, Department Primary Industries) and Colin Byron (Equine Educator). A warm sunny morning heralded a good start to the day, kicking off at 9:00, with 4 small groups of 5-6 people. The bovine hoof trimming was held in the anatomy lab where Jeanette went through the basic principles of the 'Dutch 5-cut method' for properly shaping a hoof. Each participant then got to have a go at the method, with distal limbs from beef cattle, using cutters and hoof knives.

Jeremy presented a fantastic talk on poisonous weeds as well as a peek into life as a Government vet. Jeremy is the Senior Veterinary Officer for the Central Region, covering the Fleurieu Peninsula right up to the Riverland, and had many eye opening stories of plant toxicities in large animals. The main presentation included disease syndromes caused by such plants as Heliotrope, Salvation Jane and Capeweed, followed by an in-depth look at Perennial Ryegrass Toxicity. Participants from the day will also receive a CD, compiled by the Moo Crew, containing all of Jeremy's presentations and recording as well as a host of fact sheets and disease investigation notes.

Our third station, presented by Colin Byron, was an enlightening introduction into equine behaviour and practical methods to achieve quick and effective responses for everyday interactions with horses. Colin took groups of 10-12 students through the process of desensitising a horse via a discreet brace-and-release system and demonstrated the quick responses that can be achieved. Students were then able to have a go at these techniques of horse handling practising the small nuances required to effectively carryout the method. Colin's presentation will be a handy tool for any participants wanting to ultimately work in the equine field giving them the ability to make everyday interactions much easier. Each equine presentation also received a short session on leg wound bandaging.

We would like to thank the following people for making the day possible; our wonderful presenters for donating their Saturday to give us some fantastic information, the University staff for helping us organise our venue, to Toby and Lisa Ryan for allowing us to use their property and horses, to the AVA for their generous sponsorship, to Mike for some great engineering, the Moo Crew for all of their hard work and finally to the participants who were able to attend.

Next year we aim to expand the event to a two day school with an evening dinner. We hope to see many more students and staff along and welcome any feedback or ideas on making the event even better.
