

CONTENTS.

- 1 The Deniliquin or Barratta Meteorite:
by A. Liversidge.
- 2 The Great Meteor of May 7th, 1895:
by H.C. Russell.
- 3 The Narraburra Meteorite: by A. Liversidge.
- 4 Obsidianites — Their origin from a Physical Standpoint: by Kerr Grant.
- 5 On the Composition and Origin of Australites: by H.S. Summers.
- 6 Note on a New Meteoric iron from Mount Edith, Ashburton District, West Australia:
by W.M. Foote.
- 7 Darwin Glass — a new variety of the Tek-ites: by Loftus Hills.
- X 8 A new pallasite from Alice Springs, Central Australia: L.J. Spencer.
- X 9 The Meteorite craters at Henbury, Central Australia: by A.R. Alderman.
- 10 Origin of Tekites: by Dr. L.J. Spencer.
- 11 Origin of Tekites: by Chas. Fenner.
- X 12 Meteoric iron and silica-glass from the meteorite craters of Henbury (Central Australia) and Wabar (Arabia):
by L.J. Spencer.
- X 13 Surface Markings of the denbury Meteorites
by R. Bedford.
- 13A Ditto by Spencer

- 14 A new meteoric stone from Silverton,
N.S.W. by L.J. Spencer.
- 15 Forms and Distribution of Australites:
by C. Fenner.
- X<sup>16</sup> Murnpeowie (S.A.), a granular type of meteoric iron: by L.J. Spencer.
- 17 The Morven meteorite, an aerolite from South Canterbury, New Zealand:
by C.O. Hutton.
- 18 Two new meteoric stones from South Australia—Lake Labyrinth and Kappakoola:
by L.J. Spencer.
- 19 The Tektite Problem: by L.J. Spencer.
- 20 The Tenham (Queensland) meteoritic shower of 1879: by L.J. Spencer.
- X<sup>21</sup> The Huckitta meteorite, Central Australia: by C.T. Madigan.
- 22 Tektites and silica-glass: by L.J. Spencer.
- X<sup>23</sup> The Boxhole meteoritic iron, Central Australia: by C.T. Madigan.