

The University of Adelaide, showing the main administrative block on the left, the E'der Conservatorium on the right, and the Prince of Wales building in the middle with the Anatomical School at the rear. The roof of the Darling building is discernible behind the administrative block, but the uncompleted Engineering and Physics School is hidden by the main structure.