

30th January, 1958.

My dear Chester,

I am sending you under separate cover an offprint of 'The Underworld of Probability' from sankhya, which I see they have produced very well. As you may recall, I thought they would have made a good job of Biometrics had they been given the option.

Thanks for your letter and kind wishes. You are remembered very kindly at Caius, and quite a collection of the National Geographic Magazine was awaiting me. I hope you will like the paper.

I am obliged for the suggestion that I should contribute to Perspectives in Biology and Medicine, but at the moment I am not burning to write anything that would be suitable. While in Cambridge I have received the missing cheque from Michigan State, and later one from Columbia University, so I imagine that our arrangement only applies now to the one from Sam Wilks at Princeton.

Sincerely yours,
