

17th August, 1957.

My dear Luca,

A good many people at the Congress seemed to wish that I should have my communication about polymorphism printed somewhere, and as I am, as you know, somewhat averse to loading International Congresses with the expensive and rather unprofitable task of printing communications made to them, I propose to make arrangements for printing it elsewhere, unless, of course, you have in view a specific appropriate journal. I expect to remove or modify the criticism of American criticism, though so far as I can judge it served a useful purpose in Stockholm.

With regards to Alba and the children,

Sincerely yours,
